

FPA Disciplinary Rules

The FPA Conduct Review Commission (CRC) has responsibility under the FPA Constitution and the FPA Disciplinary Regulation for determining disciplinary actions brought by the FPA against members. Disciplinary action against a member often follows the FPA's investigation of a consumer complaint. The FPA investigating Officer may report suspected Breaches of FPA Professional Standards to the CRC. The CRC Chair may then cause a Notice of Charge to issue to the member for the alleged Breach. Where necessary, a CRC Disciplinary Panel is formed to hear and determine the disciplinary action against the member.

Sanctions from CRC Disciplinary Panel hearings may range from expulsion and suspension of membership to fines and supervision orders and formally reprimanding the member.

CRC Hearings – Determinations & Sanctions

The following table refers to members who were sanctioned following a disciplinary panel hearing. For any complaints received by the FPA prior to 4 June 2010 amendments to the FPA Disciplinary Regulations, the Member's name was only published in the Determination where the Disciplinary Panel considered there to be a public interest need to do so. For complaints received after 4 June 2010, the FPA shall publish the name of the Member in the Determination in circumstances where the Conduct Review Disciplinary Panel has imposed a sanction.

CRC Summary Disposal – Determinations & Sanctions

Under the FPA's Disciplinary Regulations, the FPA may, after a Breach Notice is issued to a Member, invite the Member to enter into without prejudice discussions with a view to the summary disposal of the disciplinary action against the member by agreement. Significant benefits can flow from the Member's cooperation and acknowledgement of wrong-doing. For example, it may be unnecessary to name the member in publication of the disciplinary outcome where the education of the member, the profession generally, and the public can be achieved by anonymised reporting. Whereas matters proceeding to CRC Hearing and Determination usually have the member's name published.

Agreement for Summary Disposal must be approved by the CRC.

This following table shows matters dealt with by Summary Disposal since its inception in 2010:

Suspended Members

Under the FPA Constitution a Member's membership is automatically suspended (which suspension takes Immediate effect without any act on the part of the FPA) where the Member is a Representative of an Australian financial services licensee and the Member is dismissed or the Member's authorisation as an Authorised Representative is revoked by the Member's authorising Australian financial services licensee and the Australian financial services licensee advises the FPA in writing:

- (a) of the fact of the Member's dismissal or revocation of the Member's authority;
- (b) of the date such dismissal or revocation became effective; and
- (c) that in the licensee's opinion, the facts and circumstances giving rise to the dismissal or revocation amount to a breach of the Code.

A Member who is advised of the automatic suspension of their membership may apply in writing to the FPA within the 21 day period to show cause why the Member's membership should not be automatically terminated. Failure to apply within the period will result in the automatic termination of the Member's membership.
